BELDING'S Superior Pure Thread Knitting Silk.

To make the best articles in Knitting and Crochet the best silk must be used. It is not generally known that there are two kinds of knitting silk in the market—the one made from Pure Thread Silk, the other from Spun Silk. The difference is very great.

Thread Silk is made by unwinding cocoons, from each of which a single continuous thread or fibre of great length is obtained. Several of the continuous cocoon threads, being combined, are doubled and twisted a number of times until the finished thread of the required thickness is formed. (See cut No. 1). No other material has such a long fibre; consequently, silk thread thus made is stronger and more elastic than any other thread.

Spun Silk is made from pierced or imperfect cocoons, whose fibres are broken, and from other short pieces of silk fibre known as "waste," none of which can be reeled; they are carded and spun like flax or cotton. (See Cut No. 2). Articles knit in Spun Silk soon acquire a dingy, dull, rough appearance, and will not wear, while Thread Silk is smooth, strong and very lustrous, and will last for years with ordinary use.

Various brands of Knitting Silk are advertised and put on the market as Pure Knitting Silk. Spun Silk may be pure silk, but it is by no means PURE THREAD SILK. The latter is manufactured by BELDING BROS. & CO., and their PURE THREAD SILK is sold at a price very little higher than the Spun Silk of other manufacturers.

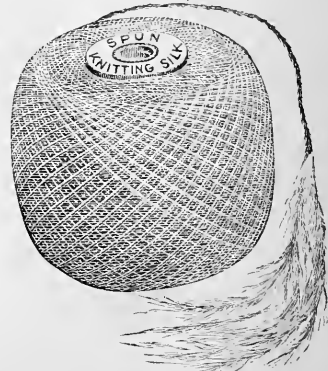

SPUN SILK IS DEAR AT ANY PRICE.

MAKE NO MISTAKE. Ask your dealer for Belding's Superior Pure Thread Knitting Silk, and take no other. One trial will convince you of the truth of our assertions.

PREFACE.

Much of the information in this work has never been published before, and is adapted to every day use. The Publishers' travels have brought them in contact with all classes of professional and business men, thus enabling them to obtain items and views of the long felt need of the present work. The mass of information has been collected by others, and ought to take away an objection which some might raise, that it is too much for one firm to know, simply because they did not realize that the work had been made by others, as well as from actual every day experience. Many of the former and early editions published are large, and have contained much useless matter, which to the tourist and residents would have been of far more value had it been entirely dropped. There is one of two things about this book: It is the biggest humbug of the day, or it is the best work of the kind published in the English language. If a careful perusal does not satisfy all that it is not the first, but that it is the last, then will the Publishers be willing to acknowledge that experimenting, travel, labor and study are of no account in giving benefit to their fellow creatures, and also giving them a reliable work for every emergency, more than for their own particular benefit. We claim the most comprehensive and valuable guide book ever published for individuals, families and the public generally, and deserving of the public patronage, and we give the above as the governing reason for a permanent publication of the work.

The remarks and explanations are in large type, whilst the prescriptive and descriptive parts are in a little smaller type, which enables any one to see at a glance just what they wish to find.

If among the thousands of readers of this work any one should hastily pronounce these pages confused and ill-arranged, let them refer to the "Index," and forever hold their peace, and let it always be borne in mind that the "Index" is the knocker to the door of knowledge, and will enable you to refer in a moment to almost anything you may require.

RUM AND QUININE.

CASWELL, MASSEY & CO.'S CELEBRATED HAIR TONIC.

Cleansing and invigorating to the scalp, stimulating to the growth of the hair, cooling to the head, and as a dressing, soft and brilliant in effect.

HILL'S LIQUID AMANDINE.

For Chapped Hands, Tan, Sunburn, Roughness of the Skin, and all Cutaneous Affections, this long known and favorite preparation is unequalled.

It is universal in its uses, cleanly and convenient in application, and the rapidity of its cures astonishing.

For the bath, it is superior to cologne and aromatic vinegar; producing upon the skin a delicacy of feeling that is soft and incomparable.

MASSEY'S FLORENTINE VIOLET ORRIS SACHET.

Originated and made only by

EMULSION COD LIVER OIL

—WITH—

PEPSIN AND QUININE.

CASWELL, MASSEY & CO. offer this preparation of Cod Liver Oil to the profession in the confident hope that it will supply a pleasant and efficient medium of administering that invaluable remedy.

It is unnecessary at this date to refer to the very high character which has been borne by the "CASWELL COD LIVER OIL" since its first introduction; it is sufficient to state that this oil is used in this new preparation.

The proportion of oil held in the emulsion is fifty per cent.; the finest Turkey Gum Arabic and the purest White Sugar are the other ingredients employed in its manufacture.

The addition of Pepsin and Quinine is made with the view of enabling the most sensitive and delicate persons to bear the taste of the oil, as well as for their valuable medical properties.

Notwithstanding the costly character of the remedies contained in this preparation, CASWELL, MASSEY & CO. have decided to place it at a very low price, for the reason, that in the great majority of cases where Cod Liver Oil is needed, the patients are in the humbler ranks of life, and can ill afford to purchase medicine.

THE OLD STONE MILL.

NEWPORT'S PRE-EMINENCE.

Newport.

WHERE can be but one Athens, one Rome, one London, and one Newport. In boastful self confidence, some barren sea-girt isle and lonely gray cliff have marked their avenues, platted their grounds, and in their dreams beheld cottages and castles, the envy of all observers, crowning the rocks, out-ranking all that wealth and taste have ever yet constructed, sun-kissed and wave-washed, the matchless frontage of their hopes. From all such dreams there has been a rude awakening. The avenues are grass-grown, and the only inhabitant of their platted grounds is the passing hunter or the lonely seabird. But Newport stands by the shore, amid her clustered palaces, a queen. She is a queen, not only of the present, but of the past as well. She is no adventurer. For more than two hundred years she has modestly and gracefully kept her place by the sea. The flowing tide has carried the story of her beauty to every clime. Her triumph was not won in a day: but it was won, through long years, by beauty and by merit, and it will not pass away. No other can ever take her place, and each year she wins a host of subjects, and loses none. Fortunes may be lost, but she is not disturbed, for hers grow better every year. Cottages may be built on other shores, but palaces are built for her. Jealous millionaires may plan rival cities,—she only smiles at them. It is not too much to say, comparing the sea-side resorts of America, or even of the world, Newport is first, and there is no second.

As you stand on Bellevue Avenue of an August afternoon, what street in the world can match it? Here are statesmen whose names are world-wide; ministers and diplomats from foreign courts; generals and admirals; philosophers and historians; clergymen and educators; artists, of hands and voice; millionaires of our own land and titled nobility from across the sea. All these are here, and here by hundreds; and if here once, they will come again, for, when weary with work or oppressed with ennui, the thoughts of the worker or the pleasure-seeker will instinctively turn to Summer at Newport, and his ear must be dull who can not hear afar the soothing murmur of the great deep, and his eye must be dim who does not see those visions of beauty which flit down its avenues.

Newport is built on an island, not far from fifteen miles in extreme length, by three miles in extreme width. Our forefathers received the entire island from the Indian chief Canonicus,—purchase money, sundry rusty door keys, broken hoes, broken knives and other valuable property. The town was settled in 1639, and a year later established its first public school. Unlike the Stone Mill, Newport remembers her birthday and her godparents, and will doubtless show her appreciation of them by saying good things to their memory when the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of her birth comes around. The founders of the town were all prominent citizens of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. They were forced, like Roger Williams, to leave the colony, and on his recommendation they settled on this island. These men were exiles because of their position in the famous discussion about the Quakers. Very many of them afterwards became Quakers, and this society has continued very strong and influential in Newport until the present time.

Doubtless many wonder at the narrowness of Thames Street. The old books tell us it was laid out "according to the convenience of the shore." It was not expected that buildings would be put on the west side of the street, but the growth of the business demanded it, hence the annoyance which every driver of a team and almost every pedestrian experiences in the narrow street. The growth of the town was along the shore. The first wharf was Long Wharf, which has continued all these years the principal one. It was known a hundred years ago by the graceful cognomen of "Queen-Hithe." Washington and Rochambeau walked its length bareheaded between the ranks of French soldiers. Later it became a market, and Higginson records in "Oldport Days" that "beeves were driven thither and tethered, while each hungry applicant marked with a piece of chalk upon the creature's side the desired cut; when a sufficient portion had been thus secured the sentence of death was issued."

THE SLAVE TRADE.

PORT SCENE.

ENTERPRISE OF THE ANCIENT DAYS.

There is a old building on a wharf not far away where human beings were tethered. Men have but lately died who had seen slaves landed there. Rum was sent to Africa from that distillery and twenty others in town, and slaves brought back. It has always been so: rum and slavery have gone side by side. It is sad to think that human beings were ever bound behind those iron bars, but the same agent which made them slaves is forging chains for men to-day, and heavier chains than ever clanked upon the wrist of any captive child of Africa. The slave trade is over, and it is time for the proclamation of emancipation from the second and harder bondage.

This was a great port once.—far greater than any other in the New World except Boston. Lopez, the Jew, is said to have sent from this port eighty square-rigged vessels. But those days are gone.—not a single such vessel is owned here now. “Doubtless there are aged persons who deplore the good old times when the Newport mail-bags were larger than those arriving at New York; but if it were so now what memories would there be to talk about? If you wish for ‘Syrian peace, immortal leisure,’ a place where no grown person ever walks rapidly along the street, and where few care enough for rain to open an umbrella or walk faster, come here.”

It is not a great task for imagination to dot the bay with the quaint vessels of the olden time, full laden and seeking harbor: or to people these quiet streets with the sedate and aristocratic citizens of an old colonial town. As we look at the old-time buildings, with their quaint little windows and low ceilings, what "graceful Absences" seem to haunt them, what tender words seem to echo still under these porticos. How we wish that the Polly Lawtons and the Coddingtons could step down from the cracked canvass and tarnished frames from which they have long looked forth, and take their part in the stately receptions of the long ago; and, standing on these worn steps, whisper the old story in willing ears. Another and much later generation has taken their place, and we cannot think that the stately dames of the olden time were any more beautiful than their descendants who now walk the same streets, and, of course, listen to the same sweet story which grandmother heard.

This old town has made many acquaintances. It knew well the British as enemies, and quite as well the French as allies. It hated Gen. Prescott as a tyrant and loved Count de Rochambeau as a friend. Thither, in 1728, came Bishop Berkley, to found in America a college for the education of missionaries to go among the Indians. Though he failed in his immediate object he stayed long enough to make his presence felt for good, and in many ways was of service to the State. Among other noted men of Newport might be mentioned William Ellery, whose name appears upon the Declaration of Independence as the representative of Rhode Island. Mr. Ellery was a well-read lawyer, and was appointed collector of Newport by Washington.

EMINENCE OF CHANNING.

MARITIME SUCCESS.

Gilbert Stuart, the great portrait painter was born not far from Newport. He was a student of Benjamin West and the rival of Joshua Reynolds and Copley. Part of his life was spent in Europe, and among those who sat for portraits may be mentioned George III., Louis XVI. He also painted in America, Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Madison, Munroe, and many other distinguished men. He died in Boston, July, 1828.

Commodore Oliver H. Perry, the hero of Lake Erie, was born here in 1785. He came of a race of seamen. His father was captain of the vessel in which he went as midshipman. He died in Port Spain, island of Trinidad, Aug. 23, 1819. A lofty monument in the town cemetery bears record of a people's gratitude and love.

In any sketch of Newport's honored sons, however limited, the name of Channing must be mentioned. William Ellery Channing was born in Newport in 1780, and was eminent alike in the Unitarian ministry, and as one of the first of American writers. It was he of whom Coleridge said: "He has the love of wisdom and the wisdom of love." He died in 1842, universally lamented by those who knew him. His fitting memorial has been erected by his many admirers, and is elsewhere spoken of. Newport has had many noble sons of later generation, to mention whose names would be a work of supererogation, and to describe their talents or their virtues would require many pages.

Newport early gained success as a maritime town, and was for a long time the Metropolis of the State. Population in 1708, 2,203; in 1774, 9,209; Providence, 4321. Shortly after this a decadence commenced, owing in part to the occupation of the town by the British, and it was not until 1850 that she enrolled as many people as in 1774. Providence in the meantime had gained 41,000. Newport was settled in 1639; incorporated as a city, Jan. 1st, 1784; city charter given up, March 27, 1787; incorporated a second time, May 6, 1853.

There are many items of interest connected with the old town that abundantly repay the time and trouble of a visit. In a list of such objects, THE OLD STONE MILL must always be first. No one knows when it was built, or for what purpose. It has a commanding site in Touro Park, and is visited by all tourists. You are at liberty to look upon it in veneration, as the work of adventurous Norsemen in the tenth century, or regard it simply as a wind-mill, to which the early settlers brought their corn, to have it ground for bread. If you are at all poetic, you will be inclined to hold an opinion in harmony with Longfellow's Skeleton in Armor,—

Three weeks we westward bore,
And when the storm was o'er,
Cloud-like we saw the shore
Stretching to leeward;
There for my lady's bower
Built I the lofty tower,
Which, to this very hour,
Stands looking seaward.

It would be sad to think, as the poet would have us, that the lady lies buried here, and her bower is likewise her monument. The height of the tower is about twenty-five feet; its diameter on the inside, about nineteen feet. The JEWISH SYNAGOGUE and CEMETERY are on Touro street, not far from the Old Mill. A fund was left by Abraham and Judah Touro, the interest of which was to be spent in keeping the building and grounds in order. These funds, amounting to about $35,000, are in charge of the city. The REDWOOD LIBRARY is but a few rods away, and will repay a visit. It was built in 1750, from plans furnished by an English architect. It is open to visitors. At the head of Touro Park is a memorial of a hundred years later,—a bronze statue of Commodore M. C. Perry, who effected the treaty between China and the United States. The statue was presented to the city by Mrs. August Belmont, of New York, daughter of the Commodore. This Perry was cousin to Commodore O. H. Perry, the hero of Lake Erie.

There are several CHURCHES worthy of notice. Among these may be mentioned Trinity. It was the first Episcopal church erected on the island, and received a bell as a present from Queen Anne. The sweet tones of the bell were second in sweetness only to those of Rev. James Honneyman who came as the rector of the new church. The old square pews and ancient sounding-board are still in use. The organ of this church was sent to this country by Bishop Berkeley. It was not, however, designed first for Trinity. It was sent to the Congregational church of Berkeley, Mass., by the Bishop, when the town was named after him. After solemn deliberation, it was voted by the society that such a worldly instrument should never be placed in their church. Bishop Berkeley then gave it to Trinity. Newport boasts the oldest Methodist Episcopal church in America, situated on Marlborough Street.

Newport has the honor of being the birth-place of William Ellery Channing. In recognition of his position in American letters, and especially in view of his position as the great leader of the Unitarian Church of his day, a memorial has been erected to him. April 7, 1880, the one hundredth anniversary of his birth, the corner-stone of a church, which should be his fitting memorial, was laid. You will not have any trouble in finding the church, for it is located on Pelham Street, near the Park, and a tablet in front bears an appropriate inscription. His influence was not bound by the narrow limits of his state, and many states and many cities were glad of the privilege of assisting in the erection of this beautiful structure. Its tower is one hundred and twenty-five feet in height, and very graceful in proportions. The dimensions of the building are 65x85. Great attention has been paid to the securing of good ventilation. The church is excellent in all its appointments, finished in fine taste and beautifully lighted by large stained-glass windows. It has a seating capacity of 500. The church owes its existence to the indefatigable labors of the former pastor, the Rev. M. R. Schermerhorn. Rev. C. W. Wendte is the present pastor.

are the State House (1742), which contains the full length portrait of Washington, by Gilbert Stuart, and in which the May session of the Legislature is held. Near it stands the City Hall (1763), built for a public market, but now entirely devoted to the use of the City Government. The Coddington House, on Spring Street, the Vernon House, on Mary Street, and the Chauncey House, on Thames Street, are good examples of the architecture of a hundred and fifty years ago. Newport has many antiquities. She boasts the oldest newspaper extant in the United States, the Mercury, started in 1758, by James Franklin, nephew of Benjamin Franklin. The Society of Friends have held their annual meeting here for 240 years.

The NATURAL SCENERY of Newport is unsurpassed. On every side there are special objects of interest. First is seen Lime Rocks, as you come down the bay, from the north. This white-washed light-house is still the home of Ida Lewis, the famous heroine, who has saved no less than thirteen persons from drowning. Goat Island is near, on which is the Government torpedo station. That circular structure in the distance, looking like the turret of a monitor transferred to the rocks, is Fort Dumplings. Landing at the wharf, the first point of interest will be EASTON'S BEACH, called for short, The Beach. This is easily found,—you have only to follow the crowd, and it is but a short walk. This is perhaps the finest beach for bathing in America, and you will see hundreds, and even thousands, proving it every pleasant day. When a white flag is flying from the bath-houses, all can enjoy the bath, but a red flag flies from one to three, P. M., when men only are expected to bathe. You must certainly go from here to Sachuest Beach, just over the brow of the next hill. Here is not only a beautiful beach, but here is Purgatory. You will be saluted with no sulphurous smoke, and may investigate to your hearts content. Purgatory is simply an opening in the bluffs, one hundred and sixty feet in length, by from eight to fourteen feet in width. They say a wicked squaw was thrown down here by Him of the cloven foot, whose foot print is still shown in the rock. SPOUTING ROCK is very picturesque, but of special interest only during a storm at sea. It is located off Potter's Point, near Bailey's Beach. There are many places in the suburbs, like Lawton's, the Glen, Paradise, etc., that will repay one for the time and cost of a visit. Be sure and visit Fort Adams.

We shall have space only for bare mention of many interesting buildings of modern date. The Ocean House, with its broad piazzas and hundreds of rooms, is familiar to all Newport visitors. Not far from it is the CASINO. This was built through the efforts of James Gordon Bennett. It has a front of 186 feet. In all its appointments it is well nigh perfect, and needs to be seen to be appreciated. It has a large number of elegant suites, for bachelors, with restaurant and café near. Passing through the neat entrance, you are at once in a beautiful court. To the north is the theatre, seating 500, and decorated in fine taste. The leading summer visitors are largely represented on the Board of Governors, who have it in charge.

It would be very pleasant if one could now pass along Bellevue Avenue, the finest boulevard in the city, and name the owners of these beautiful palaces and villas, and describe their peculiar charms of structure and location; but to make any distinction would be invidious, where each seems perfect of its kind. To do the first, our space will not allow, and we are far too kind of heart to do the second. We can only hope that your stay in Newport will be so long, and your presence so acceptable, that you may make the entrance of these beautiful dwellings, and, with the owner as your host, examine their beauties for yourself, and become enraptured, as all do become, with our queenly Island Home.

A Quiet, Cheerful Home,
For the Care and Treatment of Those Afflicted with Nervous and Mental Disorders, Who are not Proper Subjects for Confinement in Public Asylums for the Insane.

A COMFORTABLE HOME for every patient to enjoy and to receive kind, constant, and judicious care and treatment; and where much more favorable treatment can be obtained than in large crowded asylums.

THE HOUSE has every modern convenience for comfort; the rooms are cheerful and sunny, being located on spacious grounds, and have an abundance of pure water.

Beautiful Walks and Drives, amid shade trees and shrubbery, surround the house.

While there are no fixtures for seclusion and restraint, provision is made for the care and treatment of a few cases of acute mania. Selected cases of inebriety and opium habit are also received. Nervous Invalids who require rest and freedom from care, as well as those who have passed the border-line of insanity, will, it is believed, find HERBERT HALL adapted to their needs.
